FOREWORD

AS you open this book we, of the Editorial Staff, hope that it will serve a dual purpose. The first purpose is to remind you of the happy experiences which you had during your high school career. The second purpose is to serve as a dividing line in our life, as we are now taking a new step. A new phase of our life has come to us.

It is now time for us to make a place for ourselves in the world. We enter it as Freshmen. Since green is a color symbolic of us, we thought this an appropriate color for our cover. The ship, we see there, is symbolic of our lives. We are now going forth, and the cargoes with which they return, depends wholly on us.

So, with these thoughts, the GAZETTE Staff presents the 1940 GAZETTE, hoping that you will enjoy it to the utmost.

THE EDITOR.

BOOK TWO

CLASS WILL

We, the members of the class of 1940, graduating from the Lock Haven Senior High School, being of sound mind and able body, and knowing the uncertainty of life, do declare this to be our last will and testament.

After all lawful and other debts are paid, we hereby bequeath to the following:

ARTICLE I

To the faculty, the principal, the janitors, the school board and other worthies, we wish to express our appreciation of their fine co-operation at all times, and hope they have appreciated ours.

ARTICLE II

To the class of 1941, we leave our feminine beauty and masculine strength, evenly distributed. From all outward signs, we can very readily see that they need all they can get.

ARTICLE III

To the following teachers we leave:

1. One soft reclining chair to Mlle. Mabelle V. Blair, feeling that the teaching of French will be made much easier by this gesture.

2. One speaking tube for the Misses Hendricks and Littlehales to make conversation easier. Also we feel that so much energy will not be wasted.

3. A big thanks to Prof. Guy Luminiferous Cummings for helping us through his courses with many witty remarks.

4. A play cast for Mrs. Lawrence that will learn their lines without much coaxing.

5. A new flashlight for Mr. Dick when the batteries and light in the present one that he has wears out.

6. A farm to Mr. Fromm on which to teach his beloved biology.

7. A group of non-conceited debaters to Miss Beck.

8. Reams and reams of paper to Miss George so that we can use without a thought of waste.

ARTICLE IV

To members of the remaining student body, we leave:

1. To the staff of the "Bobcat," we leave Marion Angus' spade to dig up dirt.

CLASS WILL

2. To the future feminine athletes, we leave Mim Clark's and Anamary Nihart's pep.
3. To Bucky Robinson, we leave Eddie Draucker's place on the wrestling team to be filled as well.
4. To Calvin Casselberry, we leave Gloria Haggerty's brilliant mind.
5. To the future Senior president, we leave a broad pair of shoulders (like Don Dickey's) to carry the class burdens.
6. We leave Anna Bottorf's quiet reserved manner to all those who wish to be pleasing.
7. To any who wish to look studious, we will Warren Miller's bookbag and inimitable way of asking questions.
8. To any who wish to attract attention, we leave Jean Erieg and Evelyn Kline's ability.
9. To Bill North, we leave Bill Hoffman's line of broken hearts, sincerely hoping that North can find one on which to light.
10. To all future wrestling teams, we leave the strength of our graduating Senior wrestlers. We feel that it will not come amiss.
11. To Joe Spirito, we leave some of Ben Ulrich's height.
12. To "Fat" Kemmerer, we leave Margaret Williams' ability to eat and still hold that thin, petit waistline.

We hereby appoint Messieurs Fair and Square as sole executors of this our last will and testament.

Witnessed by,

PHIL A. BUSTER,
CLARA NET,
T. B. KAMP.

Note—Material gifts may not be collected until the year 2040 by the persons named only.

THE CLASS OF TRAGEDY

Europe, of all places, and at such a time too. However, we always were sympathetic with the underdog so here we are—driving an ambulance around “No Man’s Land.” (Incidentally we’re right at home.) Throughout our exploits around the battlefield, we discovered many old acquaintances of our high school days. Like us they had come over for a good cause. Those we recognized were the Swartz Sisters, Jesse Wait, Marion Angus, Lois Yorks, Maxine Watson, Canella Treires, Verna Walker and our “dear” friend “Gerry” Bailey. They were serving as nurses. They had many interesting stories to tell us about some of their patients’ ailments. Such as Albert Muthler’s hiccoughs, Mark Kessinger’s stiff neck (which he received dodging cannon balls), and Bill Torsell’s upset stomach caused by eating too much of Dorothy Shaffer’s cooking. During our short stay there we managed to give some of the doctors, including Bud McCloskey, Aubrey Love, James Nonemaker, Charlie Bowes, Robert Rathmel and Roderick Cook a very thrilling ride in our ambulance. The authorities, Jack Jones, Harris Fisher, Ivan Wetzel, Charles Grand and Ralph Dotterer, finally lost their patience with us and informed us that our services were no longer needed. Of course, we were humiliated since all we did was wreck three ambulances. So mustering up our courage we returned to the U. S. where we hoped we’d be appreciated.

Home again—the band was playing, the people shouting hurrahs—all this was for us—or so we thought until we turned around and saw Doris Fye and Paul Eyer, two well known society gadabouts. Our spirits were bolstered up, however, when someone shouted a gay hello—looking around we saw one of the members of the band. Here it was Ray Wadsworth. With him were some other old friends, Martin Grieco, Freeman Goebert, Franklin Rauch and Charles Shoemaker. From what we gathered these boys made their living by welcoming home celebrated people. Oh, hum, realizing that that left us out—we merrily went on our way toward newer and greater adventures.

Going to Grand Central Station we boarded a train to the wild and wooly west, after having bought our tickets from Jerome Decker. We were helped up the steps by Bruce Farewell and shown to our seats by Betty Heverly, the train hostess. Traveling through Tonerville, named after Fred Toner, we spied a few friends, Bruce Mosser, Shirley Funk, Elizabeth Grenoble, Janice Crider, Charles Straub, Clair Lauer, and Harrison Murty, all prominent citizens. After passing through “Roaring Falls” we were attacked by bandits who were recognized as Frances Bernstein, Donald Dickey, Bill Hoffman, George Wurster, Georgie Strunk, Robert Wolfe, Orpha Yocum, Mervin Johnson, and Mable Eberhart. The sheriff, Francis Johnson, and his posse composed of Jeanette Earon, Anna Bottorf, Hazel Crider, Betty Graham, Charlotte Nice, and Emilie Elliot galloped gallantly to our rescue and drove the ferocious bandits down past the Hodes Ranch. After this excitement we decided to recuperate in Emily Covert's private home for nervous women. Much to our surprise we were attended by Doctor Betty Bottorf who was assisted by Marie Confer, Florence Englert, Alma Fogelman, and Emily Day. Recovered, we journeyed on to Mexico by an airplane piloted by Ben Ulrich. The plane had a flat tire and while our mechanics, Paul Zell, Hubert Hanna, Robert Farrington, and Paul Eyer fixed it, we explored the hills and came upon a band of cavemen and their families. Chief of the tribe was Eddie Draucker. He entertained us by having Mim Basinger sing, June Chapman dance, both accompanied by Marjorie Rathbun. A newly married couple was Jimmie Thompson and Evelyn Kline who were recently married by Rev. Smart. After the wedding, a sacrifice was made of Gloria Haggerty to the God of Adventure—Warren Miller. Following Daniel Stanley's plea we departed for Hollywood.

At the station we hailed a cab driven by Marlin Motter and asked him to take us to Joseph Schenck's studio for beautiful women. Upon arriving we were met by Clair Ricker, Elinor Romig, Sylvia Moore, Elizabeth Smith, Ella Mae Packer, and Mary Myers, who were the main actresses. They showed us around the studio where we bumped into a funeral of a stunt-man, better known as Dean Royer. The pallbearers were Dick Renner, Christy Tallman, Edward Swisher, Richard Laubsher, Robert Seyler, and Harold Sorgen. Frances Bodle, his widow, was being comforted by Pauline Pribble, Audrey Pyle, and Dorothy Shea. Our attention was distracted from this sad procession by some very powerful speakers, Robert Swope, Robert Boyer, Perry Signorina, and Robert Shampansky at a political rally. The speeches proved boring so we rollerskated over to the fair. The admission taker was Richard Orndorf who left us in for half-price. The shooting gallery, run by Anamary Nihart, was drawing the most attention because of her rare beauty. Other booths which attracted attention were run by Betty Motter, Betty Seltzer, Opal Myers and Richard Packer.

The day is done. The darkness falls, and we with the rest of the class fell with it.
Crash!

MIRIAM CLARK and ELEANOR MESSERLY.

CLASS HISTORY

Ninth grade, or freshmen as we preferred to be called, had finally come after eight years of hard work. We were at last getting into subjects which, when we spoke of them, would amaze our elders—Latin, French and Algebra. Class elections appeared and Archie Ayers, Jeanne Erieg, William Bickford and Frances Bodle appeared victorious in the respective offices—president, vice president, secretary and treasurer.

Our first class production was "The Night Cry" which we gave in Senior High School. Much dramatic talent appeared in this production.

In the line of dances, we sponsored a Hallowe'en Dance, and we were given a dance by the P. T. A. on graduation.

On to Senior High!

In 1938 we entered upon an entirely new environment—the Senior High. We were feeling as though we were getting up in the world when we were reminded that the more appropriate name for sophomores is "Wise Fools."

Early in the year we elected the class officers: Archie Ayers, president; Richard Bowes, vice president; Jean Hanna, secretary; and Richard Carl, treasurer. Richard Carl moved to Alabama early in the year and Richard Laubscher finished the term of treasurer.

When the fall of 1938 appeared, we were now feeling only one more year after this. So we dug into Chemistry and Plane Geometry. At the annual class elections, Richard Bowes advanced to president; Robert Swope became vice president; Miriam Basinger, secretary, and Anna Bottorf, treasurer.

This year we took under our wing dramatics and dances. In the field of dramatics, we sponsored "The Patsy." This comedy was highly successful, and for the next few days our heads were just a trifle bigger.

As to a Junior Prom, we gave one very fitting to our station, and an artistic tribute to the decoration chairman. The gym was decorated in purple and white, a pseudo ceiling having been woven in. Thus ended our Junior Year Activities.

Entering upon the final lap as Seniors in the class of 1940, we began to feel sorry that we would soon be finished. In spite of all the hard work and bumps in our school life, on reminiscing, we saw what fun we had had, in fact the pleasures are most vivid in our minds. By popular choice we chose Richard Bowes, President; Jeannette Earon, Vice President, Miriam Clark, Secretary, and Miriam Basinger, Treasurer.

The most constructive piece of work done by the Seniors was their class play, "Tommy." This class was the first to use flats in the scenery, which made a very effective appearance. As a result of the grand co-operation and interest, this play had a better attendance than any other play for a period of many years.

As this article goes to press, plans are being made for the Senior Ball which we hope will be a glorious climax to many happy days.

ANNA BOTTORF.

CLASS JEWELRY

Have you seen the class rings? No doubt you have, but have you looked at them closely and absorbed their true meaning? These rings are not ordinary rings; they represent your class. Let me attempt an explanation of them.

The rings as a whole are shaped as any ring might be. In order to distinguish them from other school rings, the set was omitted in the making of them. After receiving an order from our school the Balfour Company inserts a set copied from our class seal.

By careful scrutiny we find on the set a text book with the letters L. H. printed thereon. No further explanation is needed for the letters which are well understood by all Lock Havenites. Above the text book rests the cup of knowledge. Proceeding from these raised objects are rays that probably stand for the spreading of knowledge obtained. Lock Haven High School is printed around the oval set, also in raised letters. The year of graduation is stamped on the sides of the ring, half on either side.

Having thus been attractively arranged, they are worn with the year of graduation to the left enabling others to read them. A touch of individualism is added by cutting your initials on the inside of the ring.

The class of '29 standardized the rings. Since then other class jewelry, such as pins and bracelets, have been fashioned using the same idea of the class seal. The next time you have access to any of these, inspect them and see if you don't come away with a clearer conception of the meaning behind them.

JEAN HANNA.

UPON RETIREMENT

It is a lovely thing; it is a vital and important thing; in itself it is peculiar. We know not from where it comes, nor where it goes. It is the master of mankind. When it speaks men listen. It's value is beyond human measure—it is an unfathomed sea.

At the close of day, while the night steals in to draw her curtain of darkness, it creeps over the earth. The cooing babe in his nurse's arms and the aged grandparent are absorbed in its limbs of rest and blessed by its beauty.

It brings cheerfulness and comfort to a weary, heart-broken brother. Yes, the toiling and ever-loving father and mother drop their work at its command. Machines stop. Laborers retire. A deep hush covers the land. Cares of the perfect day fade into a dim sweetness. Sleep is a blessed thing.

ALICE TROSTLE.

A REAL LAND

Oh for a land where peace would reign
Where love with its fruits would dwell.
A land free from wickedness, suffering, and pain,
Where joys without measure would swell.

A land of which one could proudly speak
A word filled with truth and real joy.
A land where men not for riches seek
A strong land, a land free from alloy.

Oh for a land where not strife is known
Where men with unselfishness live.
A land from which sorrow forever has flown
Where a people with love freely give.

A land whose people within them hold
A spirit of kindness and rest.
A land where no stories of war are told
A free land, a land that is blest.

DORIS FYE.

THIS NEED OF YOU

This need of you I know,
Burns ever in me so.
I'm hungry for your smile,
'Tis like a torch to lead me through,
This need of you.

Love's spark will catch my heart,
To kindle its flame anew.
You could at least say "hello,"
'Twould carry me through,
This need of you.

Someone with auburn hair,
Lit with gold flecked hue,
Opens the old wound bare.
Come back lover, please do:
For I need you.

My love knows no bounds,
Searing both heart and soul,
It pounds! pounds! pounds!
It's gotten beyond control.
So blue; for need of you.

ANDREW MARTIN.

RAIN

I like it now with this rainy day
The grime of the earth seems washed away.
The sky is covered with a murky gray
But, oh, what peace I've found today.

The rain brings peace and sometimes fear
But often times I'm so glad to hear
The clamor of its footsteps on the roof above my head
Then I like to hear its patter when at night I am in bed.

Some folks like a sunny day
With the sky above so blue
But me, I'll take a rainy day
With a thought held close to you.

LUCRETIA BRILHART.

THE 1940 GAZETTE

MICKEY

His hair is brown and streaked with white,
His eyes deep amber pools,
He is around both day and night,
He goes with us to school.

Football is his main attraction;
He's always in the fight.
He can't add or do subtraction,
Although he's awful bright.

Every one in town must know him;
Our pal always will be.
Every one of us salutes him,
He's our mascot—Mickey.

JEANNE COLLINS.

MICKEY, OUR MASCOT

WAR

What is this thing called war,
And what is all the fighting for?
Why must our loved ones from us part
To fight the battles others start.
Peace on earth, good will to men,
Isn't now and wasn't then.
Why must there always be a war
To kill our loved ones by the score?
Why must we have this thing called War?

ALLEN BARRETT.

HIGH SCHOOL DAYS

In the dear old High School building,
Where my old desk used to be,
There are other pupils sitting,
And I know they'll think of me
For the wood's all over ink-spots,
There are scratches on the glaze,
And my gum is where I left it
In my last old High School days.
Oh those dear old High School days,
And their cut-up pranks and plays!
I can never quite forget them as I tread life's busy ways;
And the eyes of memory gaze
As my spirit backward strays
And my heart leaps high with longing
For those dear old High School days.

WILLIAM MCCLOSKEY.

FOR THEY SHALL BE COMFORTED

I cast my lot upon the sea of life,
And wonder if this world known naught but pain,
Perhaps in some great glorious world beyond,
The joys of life I will again regain.

I sit on some high hilltop far,
And calmly watch the world go by,
I ask the very God who made me live,
Why must my youth so cruelly die?

In life's sweet Spring, my first great love,
Exalted me on high,
Though manhood came and lived and passed,
I know that love will never die.

Were I more brave I'd leave this strife,
And maybe find the promised rest,
Where love is king and wisdom prime,
And only God is best.

My eyes are dimmed, the daylight fades,
The shades of night are slowly drawn,
If mercy knowest Thou, oh, Lord,
My soul receive ere come the dawn!

EDWARD N. HENRY.

SMOKE A' LA' SIN

I once thought the world was square,
The moon was cheese, the earth was bare.
That white was black and thick was thin,
And as to smoking—
'Twas a sin.

Since I've found these things are false, and really without cause.
I even thought when just a child, there was a
Santa Claus.
I'd think of things like all possessed, and get such silly notions,
Like smoking coffee, eating coal, and drinking shaving lotions.

I had the mind one day to try, a big round, black cigar.

I made the purchase, lit the weed; it tasted like burn't tar.
The world and all its mysteries soon became much dimmer.

It wasn't long; my head soon swam; my stomach had to simmer.

A violent cough, a groggy step, was all I had to give,
Everything was going 'round. I knew I wouldn't live.

It seemed so long, like many years, until my eyes were void of tears.

I yet was in a sickly daze, emerging from a smoky maze.

I looked to see if I was thinner.

Yes, I had smoked—
And was a sinner.

CLAIR LAUER.

THE DICTATOR

He lived a lie, so he lied
To the world, to God, to man.
"I was born to rule alone, undefied,"
The course of his alibi ran.

So he conquered the nations, one by one,
In his wake were destruction and strife,
And when the din of the battle was done
He saw but one human life.

In a tent on the side of the field he found
A young soldier, aye, but one,
And he went to him, and knelt on the ground,
And spoke as a man to his son.

He knew that the lad was about to die,
And a strange sorrow pulled at his heart,
For this boy had never lived a lie;
He had only done his part.

And a plan he devised as he talked to the lad,
And as he walked away
His eyes were wet and his heart was sad,
But he learned to live that day.

Now it was too late, for his crimes, he knew,
Were found o'er all the land.
He lived a lie, as he died, 'tis true,
He died by his own hand.

GLORIA HAGGERTY.

RADIO NONSENSE

As I sat down beside the radio,
Which station I should get, I did not know,
Impatiently I turned the dial around,
And now I'll tell to you just what I found.

For quick relief from colds and headaches, too,
Just listen to the voice of Foo Man Chu.
Then take every half hour two tablets,
And notice how beautiful your hair gets.

Apply your make-up when you are certain
That a French ship was sunk by a German.
If you use our powder you need not fear,
The Chant of the Tobacco Auctioneer.

If you housewives want better, richer pie,
This new furniture polish you should try.
Let the Personal Finance Company
Greatly improve the flavor of your tea.

Aft' list'ning to this one begins to doubt
What all this advertising is about.
One wonders if one really can belie'e
One-half of what one hears and one might see.

ELIZABETH WOLFE.

FACING THE FACTS

No, it couldn't be! But it is! Pat gazed once more at the small object in her hand; her heart ached. With a sob she fell onto the bed. How long she lay there, she did not know, but suddenly she heard a voice. She looked up to see her freckle-faced little roommate standing by the bed, urging her to "Please come, Patsy, just this once!"

Patsy turned her back to hide the tears that were streaming down her cheeks. As if she could ever face the crowd again! And it was just a few days ago that she had led her class on to victory at the intra-state debate. Why, until this morning, she had been the idol of her class, but none of the glory should ever go to Patsy Ann More's again! No, she was through—through with the whole dear world. She was doomed to a life of seclusion. She longed to have the world behind her, to live as a hermit, rather than to face the knowing multitudes! As she thought of life without dear old Lawrence High, she felt even sadder and more desolate than she had ever been before, but, then, what could a girl do, when she lost one of her front teeth?

FRANCES BERNSTEIN.

THE NOTE

Mr. Stanley Servor, Manager,
Jill's Jewelry Store,
Herville, Idaho.

Stanley Servor read the address on the envelope
while sitting in his cubby-hole office in the Jill Jewelry Store. He fingered the envelope with restless hands, and wished desperately that something would happen to prevent his opening the letter, even if it were the entrance of a bill-collector!
No one entered and nothing happened, and, nervously, he opened the packet, and withdrew the contents. He opened the half sheet of folded note paper that had come out of the envelope.
Slowly, he read the few short words.

With a groan of despair he lifted his hat from the hat-rack in the corner of the room and made his way blindly to the door. He sulked furtively down an alley-way until he came to the famous Herville Harbor. No one was around. Hastily he advanced toward the end of one of the long black piers. It was dark. The day was fast coming to a close. When he reached the end of the pier, he gazed disconsolately down into the black water below him—

Any one present a few seconds later might have heard a disgruntled voice speak: "Oh, drat those party invitations!"

FRANCES BERNSTEIN.

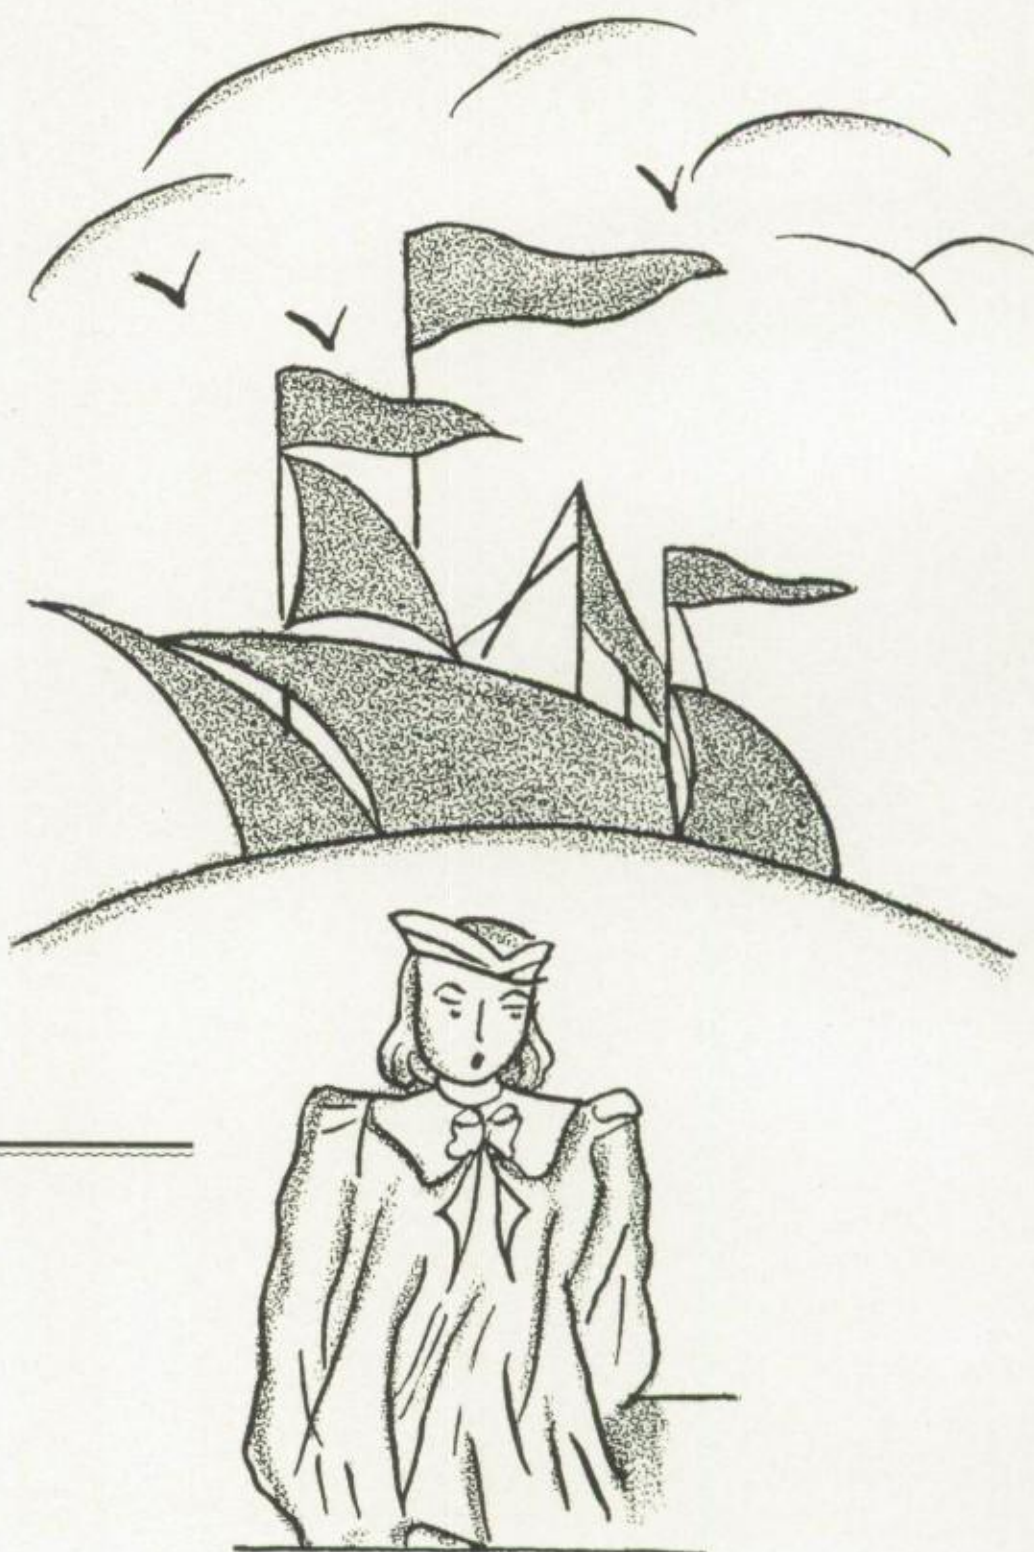

LIFE AND TIME

We are but minutes these little things!
Each one furnished with sixty wings.
With which we fly our unseen track
And not a minute ever comes back.
We are but minutes yet each one bears
A little burden of joy and cares.
Patiently taking the minutes of pain
The worst of minutes cannot remain.
We are but minutes, use us well,
For how we are used we one day must tell.
Who uses minutes, has hours to use,
Who loses minutes, whole years must lose.

This year there was the greatest turnout of any season ever experienced by Miss Beck, coach of the Debating Club. The teams met more schools than ever before. They attended three tournaments, one at Dalmatia, Slatington and Lock Haven, meeting on the average of over sixteen schools from Eastern Pennsylvania and New Jersey. Besides tournaments, there were many dual meets with other schools including Tyrone, Lewis-town, Pottsgrove, and State College. Though the debaters failed to win the third leg of the district tournament cup, the experience gained by the team which is composed wholly of Sophomores, and one Junior, is such that next season Lock Haven is looked upon as an excellent contender in the National Forensic League.

SOCIAL RELATIONS COMMITTEE

The Social Relations Committee functions for the sole purpose of aiding new students in becoming acquainted with their school environment. The committee members were at the service of any student wanting information the first few days of school and they, also, took charge of the first chapel program.

Other small services have been rendered throughout the year.

This year's Tri-Hi-Y was very active. At the beginning of the year, we had a scavenger hunt to begin our social life. After this we went to a local restaurant, each girl going "Dutch." Our next social event was a Movie Party and treat afterward. Plans for the chapel programs and a swimming party at the Williamsport Y. W. C. A. have been laid. We also have plans for a Roller Skating Party under way.

In the line of sharing, the Club distributed baskets at Thanksgiving under the supervision of the Salvation Army. At Christmas time we distributed toys to add to the Season's spirit.

During the club meetings, courses were run on girls' guidance, and various speakers were brought in. Such subjects discussed were etiquette, clothing, librarian work, and teaching.

The Hi-Y movement is an International, Inter-denominational Fellowship which attempts to be influential in the life of the High School.

The two basic ideas in the best modern Hi-Y Club are (1) A cohesive group joined together by a common Christian interest, and (2) A field of endeavor wherein this group first determines how to forward its purposes and then tries to realize its objectives.

Any high school boy who is willing to make the ideals of the Hi-Y Club his guide for daily living, and who is willing to help in the extension of the Hi-Y movement, may become a member of the Hi-Y Club.

Due to the excellent supervision of Miss Blair, the French Club has completed another year successfully. The French Club is formed to foster special interest in the students in the French language and the French people.

The most interesting project the French Club performed this year was the presenting of a puppet show in chapel. Also during several club meetings native born Frenchmen spoke to the club which proved educational. Other activities accomplished were the holding of a Christmas party, a school party, a treasure hunt, and a club picnic.

DRAMATICS

The Dramatics Club in our school, under the direction of Mrs. Robert F. Lawrence, is made up of two groups which are complementary to each other. The one, known as the Dramatics Class, studies among other things the history of the drama, enunciation, good diction, plays and playwrights of all periods. The other group takes part in the production of three plays a year—the Milk Fund play in November, the Senior Class play in February, and the Junior Class play in April.

The members of the Dramatics Class are:

The Clubs made their first appearance in chapel and sang carols at Christmas time. Choral and Glee Clubs combined sang at the Flemington Methodist Church for the League of Youth, and also at the Beech Creek Presbyterian Church, in charge of the Ladies' Aid. A very successful party was given by both clubs in the Senior High Gym.

Being successful clubs, they have been invited to sing over the radio station at Williamsport. This year's clubs have been the most successful of any of the years in the past. The latest appearance was at the St. John's Lutheran Church for the Civic Club.

Each year the members of these clubs have been readily accepted by the Bel-Cantos in charge of Miss Ullemeyer and also of many other colleges.

ORCHESTRA

Entering upon its second year, the symphony orchestra is active in the school curriculum, entertaining at all school plays and at the annual commencement exercises.

The main body of the orchestra is formed by a group of band members who have had a few years experience with such work and the remaining parts being carried by the younger and much larger group of instrumentalists. This latter element will eventually bring this organization to such strength that the city as well as the school will be proud of them.

The orchestra showed improvement for the year by sending seven members to the District Orchestra at Mansfield and two members to the All-State Orchestra at Berwyn.

The band experienced one of its busiest years. Beginning with the usual active part in the football and basketball schedules it climaxed a very successful season by entertaining the Central District Band of the Pennsylvania School Music Association.

It is no more than right to take this opportunity to congratulate another organization which is closely related to the band. It is the Band Mothers Association which gives financial as well as moral support to this group.

The Future Farmers of America is an organization of farm and other rural boys organized to promote future rural leadership, personal responsibility, and group activity.

During the past year they have achieved state recognition in projects and judging, locally they have provided many social affairs and helped put over the Farm Show.

They meet the first Monday night of each month and hold special meetings during activity periods when activities demand.

Special recognition should be given to Ralph Dotterer, a member of this year's Senior Class, in having received one of the awards of the State at the State Meet last year. Only 70 of these are given, and we feel justly proud of having one of our class members receive one of them.

 Boys on squad who were not in picture: Albert Lachet, Guy Straub

In a season with nine defeats and one lone victory it is hard to find room for optimism or to have a cheerful outlook for the future.

There was, however, one thing about our football season which might add a ray of hope—the lineup Saturday after Saturday was studded with young, green, inexperienced men. These boys made plenty of mistakes; mistakes which should have taught them a lot about the game. They will all be back for next year's season with more knowledge, and we hope the same enthusiasm which inspired them in the beginning of the year. With this year's experience, a year's growth, and more training in fundamentals they should be able to field a team which will do much to atone for some of their defeats this season.

There were several occasions during the season in which the team looked good. The opening game was as successful as could be expected. Against Steelton and Lewistown, there were times when the boys showed what they could have done had they remained in the right mood long enough.

We may look forward without a doubt to a more successful season next year, but we will lose many boys by graduation who would help to make a really good team. It is too bad they will miss this opportunity, but their efforts this season were not unappreciated, and we hope they will all have success in their college days.

BASKETBALL

The basketball season of 1939-40 was a big improvement over the 38-39 season due to the fact that the fellows were more experienced and had played together for two seasons. Three of the same fellows will be together again next season, so with these fellows and the fine Junior Varsity team, we had this season, the prospects look favorable for next season.

CHESTER B. VIECHNICKI,
Coach.

JUNIOR VARSITY

On the first Tuesday after the Thanksgiving vacation, the Lock Haven High School Junior Varsity had its first practice under Coach I. V. Davis. The boys progressed fast and their swift moving attacks spelled trouble for their opponents in 12 of their 13 games.

The all-Sophomore aggregation consisted of Dwight Helt, Donald Wadsworth, David Thomas, and Donald Welsh, forwards; Ralph Shoemaker and Brooke McGhee, centers, and Petter Innocent, John Fredericks, William Eiseman, and John McGee, guards. Other members of the squad were Joe De Marte, Joe Vicolo, Chester Wadsworth and Max Coploff, Manager.

The boys must be complimented for their ability to get to practices which were held at any time because of complications which came in to getting the floor.

The 1939-1940 Junior Varsity is looking forward to next season when they will represent Lock Haven as a part of the Varsity and they hope to bring new honors to their Alma Mater on the hardwood.

WRESTLING

Wrestling at Lock Haven High School reached an all-time high. Five victories and four defeats saw the team through a season that was mainly victorious. Another new thing for Lock Haven was the production of two district and one state champion by the coach, Jay Allen Miller. Eddy Draucker and Bucky Robinson were our district champions, and Eddy Draucker came through for a state title, Robinson being defeated in the semi-finals. To terminate another successful year of wrestling, the district meet was held in Lock Haven. Thus, this year's Senior wrestlers, Edward Draucker, 105-pound class; Francis Johnson, 125-pound class; Richard Smart, 145-pound class, and Benjamin Ulrich, 155-pound class, graduate leaving best wishes for more successful seasons.

DRAUCKER, STATE CHAMPION

The 1940 wrestling season brought forth Lock Haven High School's first state wrestling champion. Eddie Draucker, our champ, and a member of this year's Senior class, went through an undefeated season. When the district meets were held in Lock Haven, Eddie came through for district champion in the 105-pound class. The following week, at State College, Eddie won the state championship title in the same class, after he had advanced to the final round and had defeated his opponent by a fall in an overtime period. Thus we say "Congratulations to Eddie, and more success to the future wrestlers.

GIRL'S SPORTS

This past year has been a very successful year for girl's sports. In basketball, there were nine teams formed out of the Sophomore, Junior, and Senior classes. The highest scoring team was "The White Tigers," captained by Mary Jo Remick.

The Tri-Hi-Y Club formed a basketball team and they had a satisfactory season. They played the Renovo Tri-Hi-Y, the Piper Aircraft girls, and the Silk Mill girls.

Miss Leathers, the physical education director, had a large number of both junior and senior high school girls report for tumbling and work on the mats and apparatus.

BOYS' TUMBLING

GIRLS' TUMBLING

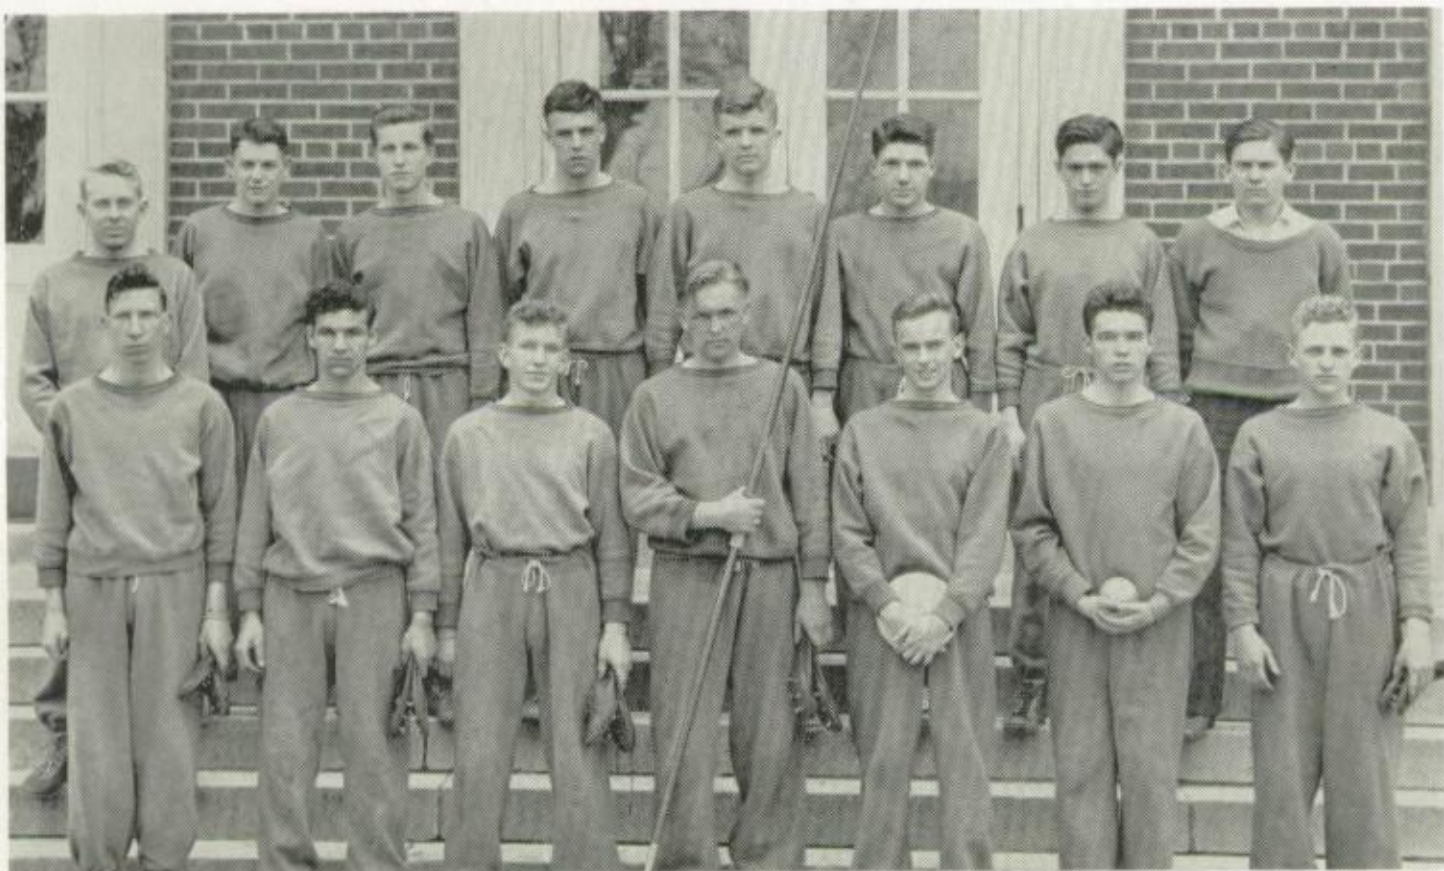

CHEERLEADERS

Cheerleading this year has reached an all-time high. Activity in this group has been very great. The cheerleaders filled their usual position of leading cheers at the football and basketball games, besides ushering at different events around the school. They served as ushers at the district wrestling meet and the farm show. A big event in their activities was marching with the band at the Bucknell Homecoming. And so, from the cheerleaders, a big cheer for a highly successful year.

SCHOOL NOTES

SEPTEMBER

6—Well, we are back to school again. That means we'll be once more on the alarm clock standard time (7:45). We have heard that cold water is good for eyes that won't stay open.

7—The innocent, but oh-so-wise little sophs are very grateful we're sure, to that Information Bureau—The Social Relations Committee, for their inexhaustible source of knowledge about "Whose room being where."

8—Mr. Hoch and the office force have been doing some heroic work in the changing of schedules today. The changes are being made to suit everyone possible. (So they say).

11—Our first full week of school has just passed. "Do not lag" are the words upon teachers' lips. Well, we don't.

12—The dignified (?) Seniors got a chance to see what constitutes the Senior Class in their first chapel meeting today. Not bad, is it students?

13—The notice—Bank Day Tomorrow—didn't do much good according to the first banking percentage. Maybe the kids spent it at the movies last night.

15—Gee! We have some band this year. They put the pep right in you and make you feel as if happy days are here again.

19—Our little sophisticated Juniors had their first chapel meeting. We hear they had a nomination of class officers. They are fast workers.

23—Football season opened with a bang today with 3,500 people present at the opening game played with Renovo. Score 12-0 our favor.

25—It feels pretty good to get back in the swing of things at school. Pardon me, but didn't I hear someone just say "Oh yeah!"

29—Our team played on a wet and muddy field today with Emporium. Score—4-0 with Emporium in the lead.

OCTOBER

6—That old Latin saying—"Tempus Fugit"—fits in with school today. Why? We have just completed one full month of school today. Just eight more to go.

10—We Seniors had a nomination for class officers. May the best man, woman or child win.

11—We noticed there were signs posted about the party to be given by the Social Relations Committee. Here's hoping it's a grand success.

12—The Choral Club has again chosen Mary Brown for their president. This is the second consecutive year for Mary. She must have something there.

13—Why the vacation? Institute. The faculty will have to taste what we eat for 190 days of the year!

14—Down hearted? I should say not! At least Mount Union didn't walk away with us.

15—Hear ye! Hear ye! A new school paper—The "Bobcat" is just off the press. It claims to print all news that is worthwhile. Be careful editors.

17—Those members of the Senior Class who are bright enough to take Physics started to experiment.

19—The sophomores held their first chapel meeting this morning. Don't get frightened children.

21—The team met up with Milton today with the score being 38-0, Milton's favor.

30—Hurray! A short school session. We're all going to see the dedication of the new bridge.

NOVEMBER

2—Congratulations Dick! Once more we have chosen Dick Bowes to take us successfully through this school year. We also extend congratulations to Jeannette Earon, Miriam Clark and Miriam Basinger, the other officers of the Senior Class.

8—Everyone is preparing themselves for "Open House" tomorrow. We want to know our lessons specially well because Mother and Dad are coming to see how Willie behaves in school.

9—There was quite a large crowd at "Open House" last night.

11—Armistice day, we had a short session and saw a very interesting chapel program presented by Miss Beck.

18—The football squad met Huntington today with Huntington in the lead. Score—19-0.

20—The GAZETTE Staff had its first meeting today. The editor-in-chief, Marion Angus, has a nice piece of work on her hands.

22—Thanksgiving vacation started today at 3:05. Pleasant week-end.

23—Big day today. We hope no one got sick for over indulging in food. The last football game of the season was played with Jersey Shore, score 44-12 in their favor. We admire the squad morale. If good sports and good hearts would have counted, L. H. H. S. would be Pennsylvania champions.

27—Is it time to get up already? Ho hum, it won't be long until Christmas vacation comes.

30—The Senior Class dues were set for $3, that's giving us a break. "Mimi" Basinger is all ready with her little black receipt book; so let's get 'em in.

DECEMBER

1—Look your best, students, and watch the cameraman. Today is the day for GAZETTE pictures to be taken.

8—The Choral and Glee Clubs staged a successful party tonight. I'm too sleepy to go into details.

SCHOOL NOTES

13—Chapel this morning was made up of entirely sports. We vote for more of such programs.

21—Whew! Do we have artistic talent? We were really given a sample of it in the combined Junior and Senior High School Christmas Display.

22—At last! Mr. Hager should be satisfied. We are happy to announce that Senior High reached their banking goal of 70%.

23—That long-awaited vacation is here at last. There will be no more talking, writing or looking at school notes until next year. Merry Christmas!

JANUARY

2—Back to school again. Our next big worry is Mid-years. By some of the reports we hear many of the students enjoyed the ice skating on the river during vacation.

3—Last night our basketball team won over the Alumni—27-23. It all goes to show you the younger generation rules.

11—Practice for the Senior Class Play "Tommy" is now under way. If Mr. Harris completes what he is trying to do, this play will be remembered for a long time.

17—Those students of the studious type are now dining in the Study Hall. Why? To have more time to study. Ha, Ha.

24—Ooooooh! Mid-year exams have met us again. Did we really study all the things that were on those mimeographed papers?

30—A rising vote of thanks goes to the school for letting us go ice-skating during our gym periods during the month of January.

FEBRUARY

1—Debates really got under way this week. We actually believe no one went to sleep during them.

7—The Noonday Lenten Services were started today. Many of the students took the opportunity of attending.

14—Where's everyone? Maybe the slight snowfall of about two feet kept 'em home. I wonder.

15—I wonder why everyone is wearing boots. Oh! I know. It must be the snow. Get your shovel out. More fun!

20—The debating trip to State College was postponed today because of bad road conditions. Better luck next time kids.

22—Oh, my! Discussion for the Senior theme was started today.

MARCH

1—The Seniors have chosen to write their themes about the topic, "Education for National Defense."

8—The district wrestling meet is being held in Lock Haven today and tomorrow. Watch out girls, there are some pretty handsome wrestlers.

14—A most colossal, stupendous concert is being held in Lock Haven this week-end. There are about 200 musicians participating in this All-District Band Meet.

16—With lots of rain today, it looks as if we will have a flood similar to that of 1936.

18—Nothing like a little water to set the day off right. The lower end of the town was a little damp this morning, but the dampness didn't travel far enough, for there was school, much to our disappointment.

21—Out today for Easter vacation. We were happily surprised when Mr. Hoch announced that we had Easter Monday off. More fun!

APRIL

1—"It was truly successful" is the statement heard today; for "Tommy" was given. We of the Senior Class extend our appreciation to the cast, Mrs. Lawrence, Mr. Harris and all the many others who put forth effort to make this the success that it was.

9—What are all those little white cards the Seniors are exchanging? Name cards of course. Did you get one? Now, the question, what to do with them?

10—The Senior Announcement was chosen today. It was quite a job to pick out the nicest one. Oh well, they're for a good purpose as all our relatives know.

15—The Commencement themes are due today. Well, that is one good thing off our minds.

MAY

3—The Seniors that are at the head of our classes labored, sweated, and worried through the State Scholarship examination today. Some fun!

20—Gee whiz, the closer that day comes when we will be seniors no longer, the more we hate to leave L. H. H. S. Don't worry Juniors, we'll be back to see you.

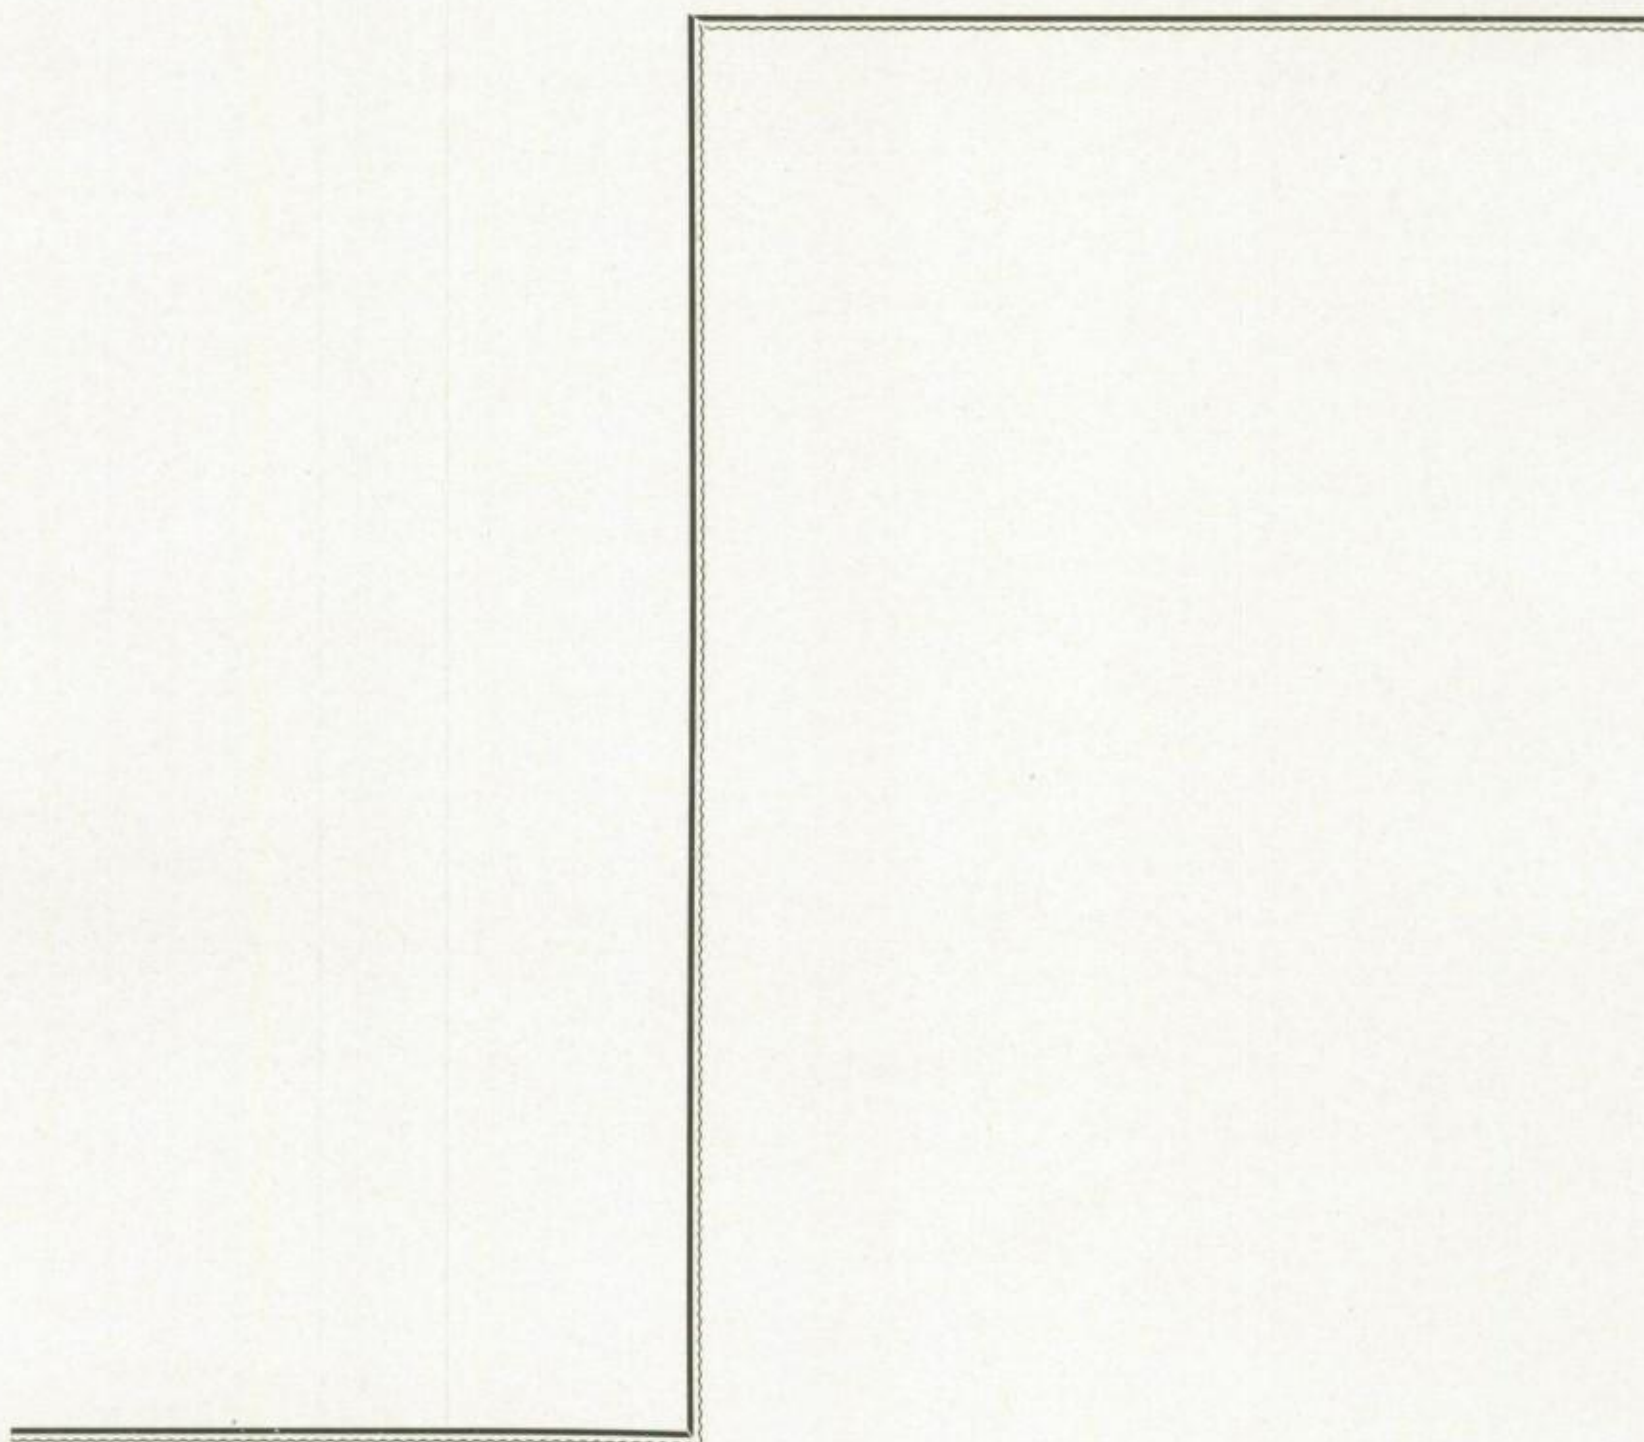

JUNE

5—As that day draws nigh we all feel just a little more attached to our past friends these last four years and to this building where we had so many good times.

12—Well, tonight is graduation and the Senior Ball (?), and we are now men and women about to take our place in the world. More power and success to those who take our places, and more vivid imagination to the new editor of your high school notes. Goodby now!!!
